PROFILE:

Supreme Splendor

Within two years, the German goldsmith and jewelry designer Erich Zimmermann has received two reputed American jewelry awards: After winning the Town & Country Design Award in 2007, he has now been honored with the JCK Jewelers Choice Award in 2008.

He was awarded both prizes for his Cocoon necklace, an eminently lightweight jewelry creation whose airy yet voluminous shape was inspired by the organic aesthetics of the botanical world.

The Heart locket of Erich Zimmermann is a piece of jewelry that exemplifies his quest for perfection in terms of design, material value and craftsmanship. Even without any contents, this flatteringly smooth gold or platinum heart, set with first-grade gemstones, is a piece of jewelry to dream of. If we want to see what's inside, the heart opens into two halves held by a solid hinge.

Gemstones have always been a central element in Erich Zimmermann's jewelry. This goldsmith and gemstone expert regularly travels to the world's foremost gemstone regions to buy specimens of outstanding quality at the very places where they originate. He then puts the most beautiful of them into the limelight on his Princess rings which show off the stones' inimitable colors and brilliance to maximum advantage.
